TRIBAL PREVENTION SERVICES

Since passage of the Family First Prevention Services Act, the Title IV-E Prevention Services Clearinghouse has been conducting reviews of research on programs and services aimed at supporting children and families and preventing foster care placements when possible. However, these prevention services are not necessarily appropriate for supporting American Indian families. It is crucial that services for American Indian families address the strengths and knowledge that already exist in tribal communities, as well as the unique challenges they face, such as intergenerational trauma and grief. There is no central clearinghouse for these services, but they do exist! This list contains several evidence-based programs and services that have been culturally tailored to support American Indian families. The list includes several services approved by the Title IV-E Clearinghouse that have been successfully implemented in tribal communities. In order to receive Title IV-E funds for prevention services, an approved service must be used. It is possible to request a program for review by the Clearinghouse. (See the final section of the CCFWD FFPSA Prevention Services Fast Facts document for more information.) A public call for recommendations occurs annually. Join the email list to get updates!

Motherhood is Sacred, Fatherhood is Sacred

Parent-Skill Based Programs and Services

- Motherhood is Sacred, Fatherhood is Sacred offers participants the opportunity to gain a deeper understanding of the importance of responsible fatherhood as reflected in Native American values and beliefs. The 12-week program assists fathers, mothers and families to fully realize their potential using a culturally-rich model.
Positive Indian Parenting

Parenting Skills, In-Home Parent Skill Based

- An 8- to 10-week strengths-based curriculum created by the National Indian Child Welfare Association (NICWA) that provides practical and culturally specific training for American Indian and Alaska Native parents. The curriculum ties in traditional Indian parenting practices using storytelling, cradleboard, lessons of nature, behavior management and the use of praise. The program also addresses intergenerational trauma and grief, forced assimilation and the historic impact of boarding schools.
- Population Served: Both Native and non-Native parents, relatives, caregivers, foster parents and others wanting to be more positive in their parenting approach. Participants may be voluntary or mandated.
- Dosage: Eight modules are delivered by trained facilitators weekly for 2 to 3 hours. Each session starts with a brief lecture, followed by an interactive exercise and a group discussion.
- Cost: Training can occur on site at the tribe or at a NICWA Training Institute. On-site training costs around $2,000 per day for the three-day workshop, in addition to travel costs and $40 for each participant for training material. Fees for the training institutes range from $495 per person for early registration to $560 for full price registration.
- Training: Facilitators must be trained and certified by NICWA through a three-day workshop. Facilitators may be case workers, social workers, elders, victim advocates, substance abuse counselors or others. Ideally, sessions are led by two facilitators. The lead trainer must be American Indian/Alaska Native.

Honoring Children, Making Relatives (Cultural Adaptation of Parent-Child Interaction Therapy)

Mental Health, Parenting Skills

- An evidence-based adaptation of Parent-Child Interaction Therapy (PCIT) for parents needing appropriate parenting skills or children with behavioral issues. The program incorporates American Indian and Alaska Native traditional beliefs of wellbeing and parenting practices into the tenets of PCIT. Parents are coached by a trained therapist and taught behavior-management and relationship skills.
- Population Served: Children between the ages of 3 and 7.
- Dosage: Treatment length can vary depending on the needs of the child and family. Services are typically delivered over 12 to 20 weekly one-hour sessions. Treatment is considered complete when a positive parent-child relationship has been established, the parent can effectively manage the child’s behavior, and the child’s behavior is within normal limits on a behavior rating scale.
Honoring Children, Mending the Circle (Cultural Adaptation of Trauma Focused Cognitive Behavior Therapy)

Mental Health

- A combination of trauma-informed interventions with elements of cognitive behavioral therapy designed to address the needs of children who have experienced traumatic events and PTSD. Interventions support American Indian and Alaska Native cultural views and practices.
- Population Served: All ages under 18 years old.
- Training: Honoring Children, Mending the Circle is provided by a licensed clinician or a member of a treatment team that includes a licensed clinician. In order to attend training, participants must first complete an online Trauma-Focused CBT Therapy training. The online training costs $35. There is a $500 fee per participant for training.
- Contact: Indian Country Child Trauma Center, 405-271-8858 or 405-271-2931
- Indian Country Child Trauma Center: Honoring Children, Making Relatives

Honoring Children, Respectful Ways (Cultural Adaptation of Treatment for Children with Sexual Behavior Problems)

Mental Health, Abuse Prevention

- A therapy designed for children who have experienced traumas of sexual abuse, physical abuse, and family violence. The curriculum was adapted from Problematic Sexual Behavior-Cognitive Behavioral Therapy (PSB-CBT). Family and support systems are utilized while teaching sexual boundaries, abuse prevention strategies, behavior monitoring and making amends.
- Population Served: Children between the ages 3 and 12.
- Contact: Indian Country Child Trauma Center, 405-271-8858 or 405-271-2931

Programs Approved by the Title IV-E Prevention Services Clearinghouse & Also Implemented or Tested in Tribal Communities

Brief Strategic Family Therapy

Mental Health Programs and Services, Substance Abuse Programs and Services, In-Home Parent Skill-Based Programs and Services

- Brief Strategic Family Therapy uses a structured family systems approach to treat families with children or adolescents who display or at risk for developing problem behaviors. This is accomplished by therapists establishing relationships with family members, observing how family members behave and interact with one another, then assigning tasks and coaching family members to promote more effective family interactions.
- Population Served: Families with children and adolescents (6 to 17 years) who display or are at risk for developing problem behaviors including: drug use and dependency, antisocial peer associations, bullying or truancy.
- Dosage: Typically delivered in 12 to 16 weekly sessions.
- Cost: Estimated cost of $3,500 per youth. Cost can vary depending on agency salaries, distance to families in treatment, etc.
- Training: BSFT is delivered by trained therapists. A master’s degree is typically required in addition to training or experience with basic clinical skills common to behavioral interventions and family systems theory. Training consists of live workshops, to practice essential skills, and supervision practicum for 4 to 6 months.
- BFST Program Support
Motivational Interviewing

Mental Health Programs and Services, Substance Abuse Programs and Services

- Motivational Interviewing is a counseling method designed to help clients resolve ambivalence for change and increase motivation. This method promotes behavior change and improvements in physiological, psychological and lifestyle outcomes.
- Population Served: Can be used to promote behavior change with a range of target populations.
- Dosage: MI is typically delivered over one to three sessions. Sessions typically last for 30 to 50 minutes. Dosage may vary if MI is delivered in conjunction with other treatments.
- Cost: Average cost for training in MI is $350 to $400 per individual. Discounted rates are often offered for group trainings. Most trainings are two days. There are different levels of training depending on whether the practitioner is a beginner or intermediate level.
- Training: MI can be delivered by a variety of different professionals. There are no minimum qualifications. The Motivational Interviewing Network of Trainers (MINT) does not recommend specific trainings. There are online training resources, MI trainers and public trainings by MINT members.

Multisystemic Therapy

Mental Health Programs and Services, Substance Abuse Programs and Services

- Multisystemic Therapy (MST) is an intensive treatment for youth who are at-risk or already engaging in criminal activity. The program aims to promote pro-social behavior, reduce criminal activity, mental health symptoms, out-of-home placements and illicit substance use through intervention methods delivered in multiple settings.
- Population Served: Youth between the ages of 12 and 17 and their families. Target populations include youth who are at risk or already engaging in delinquent activity, substance misuse, experiencing mental health issues or at risk for out-of-home placement.
- Dosage: Treatment typically includes multiple weekly visits between the therapist and the family. The treatment lasts an average of 3 to 5 months. The intensity of services varies and is determined by both the therapist and family. Therapists must also engage in ongoing training and consultations in order to ensure service delivery is consistent with the MST model.
- Cost: The cost of implementing MST varies depending on the region and provider. Most of the cost relates to MST staff. MST services recommends that agencies budget for having 4 to 6 Masters level clinicians including salary, benefits, and fringe. Other significant expenses include office space, equipment, travel time for therapists, flex funds for families and administrative overhead for the agency.
- Training: Therapists must work for licensed MST teams and organizations in order to deliver MST services. An initial 5-day training must be completed.

Nurse-Family Partnership:

Well-Supported

In-home Parent Skill-based Programs and Services

- Nurse-Family Partnership (NFP) is a home-visiting program implemented by trained registered nurses. NFP aims to improve the health, relationships and economic well-being of mothers and their children by providing support and education.
- Population Served: Young, first-time, low-income mothers from early pregnancy (no later than week 28 of gestation) through the first 2 years of their child’s life. The focus is primarily on mothers and children but the participation of other family members is strongly encouraged.
- Dosage: NFP aims for 60 visits that last approximately 60 to 75 minutes each. Nurses visit mothers weekly for the first month after enrollment. Visits then continue on a bi-weekly basis or as needed. Visits take place in the home or in a location of the mother’s choice.
- Cost: Cost of implementing NFP varies depending on location. Nurses’ salaries account for most of the variability in cost. For example, the cost of the program in South Carolina is estimated to cost $6,000 per family, and $9,600 per family in New York City. Medicaid can be used to cover health care costs associated with the program.
- Training: NFP is typically delivered by registered nurses with a Bachelor’s degree or higher. Nurses must complete all educational sessions with the NFP National Service Office (NSO). Nurses must also participate in ongoing meetings with staff members and NSO supervisors.

Parents as Teachers

In-home Parent Skill-based Programs and Services

- Parents as Teachers (PAT) is a home-visiting education program that uses personal home visits, supportive group connection events, child health and developmental screenings and community resource networks to teach skills to new and expectant parents. PAT aims to promote positive child development and prevent child maltreatment.
- Population Served: New and expectant parents. Services can begin prenatally and continue until their child reaches kindergarten. PAT is designed to be used in any community or family but many programs target families in possible high-risk environments such as teen parents, history of substance abuse, and chronic health conditions.
- Dosage: PAT is usually delivered in homes, but can also be delivered in schools, child care centers or other community spaces. Meetings can range from biweekly to monthly, depending on family need. Parent educators meet with families for about 60 minutes per meeting.
- Cost: $1,290 for both the foundational training and model implementation training taken together. This training is 5 days in total. The cost for just the foundational training is $1,175. The cost for just the model implementation training is $350.
- Training: PAT services are delivered by parent educators. Parent educators are required to have a high school degree or GED with at least two years of experience working with children and parents. PAT certification involves attending a three-day foundational training and a two-day model implementation training that covers strategies used to implement PAT.

SafeCare

In-home Parent Skill-based Programs and Services

- Safe Care is an in-home behavioral parenting program that aims to reduce child maltreatment by promoting positive parent-child interactions, informed caregiver response to childhood illness and injury, and a safe home environment. The curriculum is delivered using three modules: 1) the home safety module, 2) the health module, and 3) the parent-child or parent-infant interaction module.
- Population Served: Parents and caregivers of children ages 0 to 5 who are either at-risk or have a history of child neglect or abuse.
- Dosage: The Safe Care program is designed to be completed in 18 sessions. Some parents/caregivers need fewer or more sessions to master new skills. Providers deliver three curriculum modules, each lasting for six sessions. Sessions last for about 50 to 90 minutes. Safe Care sessions typically happen in the homes of participants or in an alternative setting, such as a clinic, shelter or family-based residential treatment center.
- Cost: The cost of training varies depending on the number of individuals being trained and the level of training (Provider, Coach, or Trainer). Training is provided with a small trainer to trainee ratio, so it is generally more efficient to train large numbers of staff at once. The National Safe Care Training and Research Center reports that the average cost of implementing Safe Care per family is $2,275 (2015 dollars). This cost is estimated to include personnel time, office space, operating expenses, training costs, and variable costs per family.
- Training: There are no educational requirements for Safe Care providers. In order to receive certification, providers are required to participate in 32 hours of workshop training and receive post-workshop coaching to promote fidelity and proficiency in delivery of the program. Ongoing coaching is required to keep provider certifications active.
